

Difference between gerund and infinitive

1. Gerunds are used in sentences for actions that are actual or complete or have been completed, while infinitives are used in sentences for actions that are not actual or that can happen in the future.
2. A gerund is used for making a noun in a sentence, while an infinitive is used for making a subject, adverb, or adjective in a sentence.
3. The gerunds are only used as the object in front of propositions and not the infinitives.
  - Example: We are talking about going to the meeting. (Correct)
  - Example: We are talking about to go to the meeting. (Incorrect)
4. Some verbs take direct or indirect objects and only use infinitives.
  - Example: I promise to fix the bug. (Correct)
  - Example: I promise fixing the bug. (Incorrect)
