

The verb “to be” can be used in affirmative, negative, and interrogative sentences. Here are some examples:

“I am a software developer.”
“He is a great team worker.”
“You’re doing an amazing job.”

“We are not working on this project.”
“It isn’t the correct code.”
“I am not online right now.”

“Is he working for this company?”
“Are they developing the system?”

The verb “to be” can also be used to describe states, conditions, or characteristics of someone or something. For example:

“The computer is slow today.”

2- Complete the sentences with the correct form of “to be”:

1. I _____ a team worker.
2. One of the most important skills for a software developer _____ problem-solving.
3. He _____ an expert in database management.
4. The latest version of the software _____ more user-friendly and intuitive. (negative)
5. Technology _____ changing fast.
6. As a software developer, you _____ responsible for writing clean and efficient code.
7. _____ they constantly looking for ways to improve the software? (question)
8. When she _____ working on a team, communication and collaboration are key.
9. _____ virtual reality technology becoming increasingly popular in the gaming industry? (interrogative)
10. The latest software update _____ more stable and secure than the previous version. (negative)

